EDITOR'S NOTE

Welcome to the third volume of Crime Patterns and Analysis. Once again, this issue contains some insightful and relevant research conducted by members of ECCA. This volume also offers something we have not had in the past – two issues. Following publication of this first issue of volume three will be publication of a special issue highlighting the work that is being conducted at Simon Fraser University. My hope is that this becomes a regular second issue of each volume, where schools that have an environmental criminology focus highlight some of their research. As always, if you have any questions or suggestions, just email me. I look forward to seeing you all in Australia.
